ALLEGED LIBEL.

An action for libel against the proprietors and printers of Truth was brought yesterday in the King's Bench Division, London, by Mr. William Barrow, cab proprietor, of Highbury. He claimed damages for the alleged libel which appeared in Truth. Defendants denied the words were defamatory, and pleaded fair comment. Counsel for plaintiff said Mr. Barrow started life as a cab driver, and was now the proprietor of cabs. The libel consisted of a statement that he was associated with a man who fraudulently organised charity concerts for his own benefit, and diverted to his own use the proceeds of the concert which he organised at Caxton Hall, Westminster, on behalf of three cabmen or bus men who were in distress. The libel was published in 1913, when plaintiff was not in a financial position to take action. It, however, was used to deprive him of his cab driver's licence, and he found himself obliged to take these proceedings. Plaintiff arranged a concert for the benefit of three bus and cabmen, and out of the proceeds he paid them respectively £12, £10, and £6 19s. As the result of the paragraphs in Truth reflecting on him, plaintiff suffered annoyance, and in 1915 the police authorities were put to the trouble of making inquiries which led to the injury and annoyance he suffered, and in cross-examination denied that at the time of the concert he was in a destitute financial position. Circulars were sent out in the name of the London Cab and Omnibus Mutual Aid Society, founded by his three sons. He was treasurer, and signed the receipts. Dealing with the disposal of the concert funds, plaintiff said the Association granted his mother £6 10s. She was the widow of a cab proprietor. His wife received four shillings a week for the use of a room. His lodger got a grant from the fund. He himself received £10 10s., the amount which he paid to his lodger to enable him to go to the seaside for his health.

Counsel—I suggest out of these small concerts you have put £40 into the pockets of yourself and family.

Witness said that over a long period the payments were proper ones. He got nothing himself out of the concerts.

Evidence was given by men who received help from the Association.

Counsel for defendants contended that comment was justified. Plaintiff had put £38 or £40 into the pockets of himself and family, which could not be called an honest disposal of the funds.

A verdict for plaintiff, with £40, was returned.

It is announced that a regular aerial postal service between Italy and Sardinia will be inaugurated to-day.

The Progressi Bonifichau reports two big fires in Berlin, one destroying a macaroni factory and causing considerable damage, and the second burning down a furniture factory and destroying a great timber yard. Fourteen forest and meadow fires were also reported on Sunday.

There was a very dear trade in beef at Newcastle market yesterday, up to 82s. per stone. Mutton was also very dear, young sheep making 81d. per pound, and lamb 2s. per pound. Veal rose to 18d. per pound, the dearest price yet made on the market.

SPORTING NEWS.

CURRAGH JUNE MEETING.

FIRST DAY.

ELFTERION WINS THE WATERFORDS.

Visitors to the Curragh yesterday escaped the heavy rain which fell in the early afternoon in the city. At the Curragh there was not the semblance of a shower, and the sport was carried out under ideal conditions. The racing from start to finish was full of interest, and in most of the races there were large fields and close finishes.

To begin with, twenty-two runners went to the post for the Scurry Plate, and amongst them was Friarstown Lass, the winner of the Scurry Plate at the May meeting. She was again well supported, but did not come in for the same share of attention as some of the others, of whom Pericardium, who opened at sixes, was such a strong order at the finish that 5 to 1 was the best offer. Considering the size of the field, the lot were sent away on very equitable terms, and Pericardium, served by a quick beginning, was always prominent. Inside the distance Count Rhodes and Sand Martin closed with her, and, the three fighting out a great finish, the favourite got home a head in front of Count Rhodes, who was a similar distance in front of Sand Martin, while close up with the placed three were Arizona Beau and Sarcisneca.

Elfterion's fine performance in the Patriotic Plate at Baldoyle in which he beat such as Bonnie Dance, Mullion Lily, and Lady Earn in the easiest style, pointed to his big chance in the Waterford Testimonial Stakes, and backers did not look beyond the Son of Glasserton in their search for the winner. Odds were freely laid on Mr. C. J. Blake's colt, and, getting away very quickly, he led to within a hundred yards of the winning post, where both Bonnie Dance and Lady Earn headed him. Momentarily, it looked as if the favourite would be beaten, but when roused to his work he came away again, and won in gallop fashion, and the probability is that in him Mr. C. J. Blake possesses a very smart colt. This was his second win on the reel, and on this occasion he showed none of the greenness noticeable on his two former outings. Timier was not declared a runner for the Flat Rath Stakes, and has a chance of getting the race a very open appearance, so much so that five of the runners were backed at either fours or fives. As matters turned out it was a very one-sided affair, for Bulinda, drawing to the head of the field after a couple of furlongs, cantered in front for the remainder of the journey, and won in easy style. Mr. R. Croker's colours are now seldom seen on a racecourse, but he still keeps a few horses in training at Glencairn, and will likely, on his return to Ireland, extend the same patronage to racing as formerly. The English candidates, Bramble Twig and Forum, monopolised the wagering on the Loughbrown Stakes, and in this instance backers were again right in their sizing up of the situation, for the fancied pair finished first and second, and Bramble Twig, who had taken the measure of the others a long way from home, won in easy style. In his only previous outing this season, the winner beat Atheling, Clan Gate, and a big field of runners at the Newmarket Spring meeting. His owner, Lady Nelson, immediately after the race, handed over two hundred sovs. from the stake to the Red Cross Fund. Of the twenty-three runners for the Camp Stakes, the Clare colt and Goldgrainer were the best backed, and the former, who took up the running two furlongs from home, scored an easy victory. Rosebowl and Invermore were the best backed of a party of five runners for the Ballymany Stake, and up to a furlong from the end looked like fighting out the finish. Invermore, however, soon dropped out of the reckoning, and Suvla Bay, coming with a rare dash close home, overhauled Rosebowl in the last few strides, and won cleverly by a short head. Details :—

(Winner trained by S. Jeffery, at The Heath, Maynooth.)

Betting—5 to 4 on ELFTERION, 7 to 1 each against Lady Earn and Harrest Home, 8 to 1 each Bonnie Dance, 10 to 1 each Royal Bang and Prince Philip, 20 to 1 any other.

Elfterion set the pace away, and led from Harvest Home, Bonnie Dance, Lady Earn, and Darina, until well inside the distance, when Lady Earn and Bonnie Dance headed Elfterion. The last-named, however, drew away again, and won by a length and a half; a head divided second and third. Harvest Home was a head away fourth, Prince Philip fifth, Lady of Ghent colt sixth, Madam White seventh, Royal Bang eighth, and Gypsy King next.

2.40—FLAT RATH STAKES of 500 sovs. Weight for age. One mile.

Mr. R. Croker's br. c. by BULINDA, by Bridge of Earn—Orinda, 3, 7-7 ..... M. Beary 1

Also ran—Mr. A. H. Ledlie's Lady Colin, 4, 9-2 (M. Wing); Mr. Walker's Laughtown, 3, 7-10 (W. Barrett); Mrs. H. Whitworth's Orlass, 3, 7-13 (H. Beasley); Mr. C. Croker's Arryvee 3, 7-13 (F. Fox); Mr. Reid Walker's Ragged Robin, 3, 8-6 (V. Smyth); Major Scarvell Cape's Easter Daisy, 3, 7-12 (W. Williams); Major Cresswell's Light Division, 5, 8-2 (T. Burns). (Winner trained by C. Prendergast at Glencairn, Co. Dublin.)

Betting—5 to 4 each Laughbrown, Arcadian Maid, and Light Division, 5 to 1 each BULINDA and Ballinacarrig, 100 to 8 Orlass, 25 to 1 any other.

Arcadian Maid made the running from Orlass, Laughbrown, Liberty Hyde, Arryvee, Bulinda, and Division. This was the order for two furlongs, when Bulinda drew out, attended by Arcadian Maid and Ballinacarrig, the latter making the remainder of the running, won in a canter by two lengths; a three-quarter length divided second and third. Orlass was fourth, Arryvee fifth, Light Division sixth, Loughbrown seventh, and Liberty eighth.

3.10—LOUGHBROWN STAKES of 300 sovs. Weight for age. 1 m.

Lady Nelson's b. c. BRAMBLE TWIG, by Chaucer—Bramble Jelly, 3-0 ..... Joseph Fox 1

ELECTION NOTICES.

TO THE ELECTORS OF SOUTH COUNTY DUBLIN.
GENTLEMEN,
I appeal for your votes as an Independent Progressive Nationalist.
The fact that a Convention to settle the Irish question is about to meet gives peculiar significance to an expression of opinion by the electors of South County Dublin at the present time. I advocate the fullest measure of Dominion Self-Government for a one and undivided Ireland, with complete control of her fiscal and financial system, and a progressive policy of social reform. I trust that the result of the forthcoming Convention will be the creation of a responsible Legislature consistent with the dignity and freedom of Ireland. To this end Nationalists should be prepared to extend the greatest sympathy to every legitimate hope and fear of all sections of our fellow-countrymen, and to meet them in every way consistent with the practical working of the Constitution. In this spirit, I am ready to support the policy of the Convention, although I observe with grave concern that its constitution fails far short of a truly representative Convention of all Ireland, and that there are important interests and large sections of Irish thought which will not be fully represented.
I regard it as a matter of urgent national importance that a truly representative Irish National Council should be called into being at once, with a strong Standing Committee, with which the Irish Parliamentary representatives might keep closely and continuously in touch. As far as in me lies, I shall do all in my power to assist in the creation of such a body. I shall endeavour, if elected, to assemble within this constituency a committee representative of every phase of political thought and business interest, which may take counsel together on all matters of national importance, and especially may follow the developments of the Convention. At all times I shall consider it my duty to keep in the closest touch with the views and sentiments of my constituents, and hold myself responsible to them.
Being convinced by long and intimate experience that the better housing of the worker is an urgent necessity, I shall do all in my power to remedy a state of things which, in many places, is a physical and moral danger to the community, and a disgrace to the civilisation under which we exist. Every movement for the betterment of the workers shall have my whole-hearted support. I am convinced that progress in this direction can alone avert from our country the dangers with which others are threatened.
Our political and industrial future depends very largely upon the education of our people. I shall assist any movement to extend and improve the system of national education, if based on principles acceptable to the Irish people. The claims of the national school teachers have my sincere sympathy, and, if elected, they shall have my active support.
The development of the industrial and mineral resources of Ireland, the improvement of our harbours and waterways, the cultivation of our fisheries, the reorganisation of our poor law system, the safeguarding and encouragement of our various industries, the many problems of labour, are matters which, long neglected, become more and more urgent to the economic future of this country. If elected, I pledge myself to devote constant attention to these important national interests.
The Insurance Act has, in my opinion, failed to satisfy the legitimate demands of either employers or workers. While approving of the principles of the Act, I shall endeavour to have it remodelled to suit Irish conditions and to enable the workers to obtain their benefits more easily and promptly.
Every measure and every movement, legislative or otherwise, which may tend to build up a more self-reliant and more prosperous Ireland, shall have my earnest support.
Your obedient servant,
JOHN R. O'CONNELL.

Mesopotamia.

The report of the Mesopotamia Commission, of which we print a summary elsewhere, does not make such tragic reading as the report of the Dardanelles Commission. It presents many parallels, exposing the same wholesale muddling which led to the disastrous failure at Gallipoli, but there is this vital difference—that in the Mesopotamian campaign victory has since been wrested from defeat. All that audacious gallantry of our soldiers which the ineptitude of those who directed them throws into higher relief was in this case not in vain. The bitter memory of the fall of Kut and the surrender of General Townshend and his immortal division—an event which we in Dublin have especial cause to recall, for it was the first news which greeted us when the veil that fell between us and the world during the Rebellion of last year was lifted—has been swept away by General Maude's triumphant advance to Bagdad and beyond. That subsequent success sufficiently confirms the Commission's conclusion that the expedition was "a justifiable enterprise, but of such a character that it required during its inception and development the most careful watching and preparation." It required both and received neither. To the lack of either imagination or knowledge, the absence of coherence or fixity of purpose, the nerveless grasp upon affairs, which were exposed in the conduct from home of the Dardanelles campaign, were added in this case all the evils of divided control. The India Office at Whitehall was responsible for policy; the India Government at Simla was responsible for management. Such an arrangement naturally failed to work. The Secretary of State for India, Mr. Austen Chamberlain, controlling policy, was not cognisant of the capacity of the expedition to carry out that policy. The India Government, managing the expedition, did not accompany the developments of policy with the necessary preparations. Mesopotamia, in the picturesque metaphor of the report, was at the outset "no man's child, or rather the foster-child of Whitehall and Simla, and the acknowledged child of neither."

The ultimate responsibility for the series of blunders that resulted almost inevitably from the circumstances in which the expedition was begun must fall upon the War Committee of Mr. Asquith's Cabinet. If it had defined specifically the scope of the political objectives to be pursued, the military error of judgment which enlarged their scope into a coup de main against Bagdad could never have been made. The report, however, puts first "in order and sequence of responsibility" Sir John Nixon, the first Commander-in-Chief in Mesopotamia. His "confident optimism" was the main cause of the decision to advance on Bagdad, which, in the conditions of the winter of 1915, was "an offensive movement based upon political and military miscalculations, and attempted with tired and insufficient forces and inadequate preparation." General Townshend's splendid effort to fulfil the extravagant mission entrusted to him, ending in the entanglement of Kut, and the costly and ineffective attempts at his relief, exposed in turn the responsibility for failure of the Indian authorities, civil and military. The Viceroy, Viscount Hardinge, as the head of the Executive, and the Commander-in-Chief in India, Sir Beauchamp Duff, share this part of the responsibility. They fitted out an expedition which was to conquer Mesopotamia on the scale of frontier warfare, and below even this scale in so far as its medical arrangements were concerned. Its requirements for a whole year received from them "meagre attention and illiberal treatment." No liaison was established between Simla and Mesopotamia; Sir Beauchamp Duff never went even so far as Bombay during the crisis of the campaign. Sir Percy Lake, who succeeded Sir John Nixon in command, admitted that until his arrival in Mesopotamia he had no conception of the situation, though he had been Chief of Staff at Simla. It is typical of the confusion that a telegram of vital importance, reporting a concentration of 60,000 Turks near Bagdad, was never transmitted from Simla to Sir John Nixon. The redeeming feature of this melancholy record of mismanagement is the almost incredible devotion and achievement of the troops. Condemned to depend on "makeshift and hand-to-mouth contrivances," General Townshend and his men conquered all Lower Mesopotamia; they did everything except the impossible, and very nearly did that. At the last the indomitable quality of their spirit triumphed over material disaster. The fall of Kut, it was anticipated, would result in a grave loss of British prestige. In fact, the Commission finds, the loss was small, thanks to the deep and lasting impression which General Townshend's division had made throughout the Middle East by its splendid fighting power.

Houses for Workers.

The memorial which has been addressed to the Treasury by the Dublin Chamber of Commerce's Housing Reform Committee, the Dublin Citizens' Association, and the Dublin Tenants' Association will provoke mingled feelings in the thoughtful ratepayer. It discloses a thoroughly bad state of affairs, but gives us hope (for the first time in the lamentable history of the city's housing question) that a remedy can, and will be found. In the case of the particular incident with which the memorial deals the mischief has been done, and the only prospect of relief lies in the success of an ad misericordiam appeal to the Treasury. Of all the bad housing schemes which the Dublin Corporation has promoted in recent years the worst is its scheme for the building of workmen's cottages in the Spitalfields area. It offends every principle of civic science: it is unsound from the sanitary, social, and financial points of view. The scheme involves the building of seventy-five cottages in a slum area in the middle of the city, at a loss to the ratepayers which will begin at £1,600 a year, and will continue for sixty years. For two years the Local Government Board refused its sanction. Its committee of inquiry condemned the scheme root and branch, and Sir Henry Robinson, the Vice-President of the Board, described it as "intrinsically bad." Then, a few months ago, the Board made a volte-face. It sanctioned the scheme, and in March Mr. Duke persuaded the Treasury to advance loans for the building of these seventy-five cottages. The memorial which we print to-day is a strong protest against the Local Government Board's sudden change of mind, and against the Treasury's loan for the perpetuation of crowded slum areas in the city of Dublin. We suppose that the Government's action was prompted less by the need of housing reform in Dublin than by that of finding quick relief for unemployment. As we all know, the Government has bungled its national service schemes very badly both in Great Britain and Ireland. The official organisations have done little or nothing that the public can see, and, in Ireland, at any rate, sudden pressure by unemployed men and by public bodies has been met by all sorts of hasty and uneconomic expedients. No doubt, the Corporation's bad scheme was accepted because it had become necessary to spend money in Dublin, and the Government was compelled to take more thought for the immediate needs of Dublin workers than for the future health of their children. The necessity was the result, however, of the Government's own want of organisation and forethought, and it would be grossly unfair to penalise the ratepayers of Dublin on that account. The memorial's demand that the Treasury shall remit the payment of interest on its advances for the Spitalfields scheme is just and reasonable, and we hope that the Dublin members of Parliament will give it their best support. The really encouraging feature of this memorial is the fact that it represents a strong combination of moral, social, and economic forces. The Chamber of Commerce and the Citizens' Association stand for the wealth, business experience, and enlightened public conscience of the city. The Tenants' Association stands for the people who are really most concerned in the housing question, and hitherto have been the most completely ignored—the decent working-classes of Dublin. If this combination sticks together, it will soon acquire an influence that even the Dublin Corporation will be compelled to respect. The only true solution of the housing problem lies in the building of some thousands of cottages for the Dublin workers in healthy surroundings and on virgin soil. It seems that many interests, some notorious and some obscure, are opposed to it, but they must succumb in time to the constant and increasing pressure of which this memorial is a first, and very encouraging, symptom. The memorial is an assurance that, when the Lord Mayor decides to summon his promised conference on the housing question, he will find the public opinion of Dublin ripe for action.

Everybody's Income.

Sir F. E. Smith has just suggested that it would be a good thing if a book could be issued annually giving the income tax return of every person in the Kingdom. Such a book, he said, was compiled in another country, and he felt that such a book would be very useful in the United Kingdom. If the English Attorney-General's idea were put into practice, the circulation of any other volume extant would sink into insignificance beside the rush for this inquisitorial "Form at a Glance," "Who's Who in Income," or "What is Your Neighbour's Worth?" Then would we wonder how Smith "did it on his paltry bit," or why Jones could not take a larger house, as he was so far under the accepted limit that a man is justified in paying—ten per cent. of his income—for rent. There might be an abolition of references to tradesmen, when they could take down the local register, as they can a telephone book, and tick you off in a minute as "N.G." or "O.K." Bankers, would, perhaps, require a little more information; nevertheless, they would have a basis on which to work or make inquiry. Match-making mothers would keep a copy if there were aspirants from the neighbourhood, or would prosecute a search elsewhere. Husbands who denied their wives simple luxuries would have to "go through it"; while young women who were making a living on the stage might not give it up until they were assured that his lordship was well into five figures a year. Income-tax payers are, perhaps, divided into three main categories; the semi-straightforward; those for whom an official return is made, and the dodgers. The new book would create a fourth—those who wished to stand well, and would rather pay on an inflated sum than lose caste socially. There is a true story of a Yorkshire magnate who returned his income at £400,000 a year. The Surveyor of Taxes politely suggested that he did not wish to know what Mr. —— was worth, but the amount of his income. The retort was that the magnate was quite satisfied to pay on the amount stated. Other great surprises might be in store for Inland Revenue officials. Some persons on the stage would not wish to admit that their incomes were less than those of other ornaments of the profession; but some professional men, such as general medical practitioners, might draw a tear and a long overdue payment from the village or township which at last recognised how badly off they really were. In a word, the possibilities of Sir Frederick Smith's proposal are illimitable.

NEW ROYAL TITLES.

The King has approved of the following titles being adopted:—
The Duke of Teck—Marquess of Cambridge.
Prince Alexander of Teck—Earl of Athlone.
Prince Louis of Battenberg—Marquess of Milford Haven.
Prince Alexander of Battenberg—Marquess of Carisbrooke.
The King has been pleased to direct that Royal Warrants shall be prepared granting authority—
(1) To Colonel His Highness the Duke of Teck and his descendants and other descendants of his father, Major-General His Highness the late Duke of Teck, to assume the surname of Cambridge.
(2) To Admiral His Serene Highness Prince Louis of Battenberg and his descendants and such other descendants of his father, His Late Royal Highness the late Prince Alexander of Hesse, as are British subjects, to assume the surname of Mountbatten.
Her Grand-Ducal Highness Princess Louis of Battenberg, grand-daughter of Queen Victoria and daughter of the late Princess Alice, is, with the King's consent, abandoning her rank and title due to her being a Princess of Hesse, and wishes to be known only as the Marchioness of Milford Haven.

THE QUEEN AND BLINDED SOLDIERS.

The Queen yesterday afternoon visited Messrs. Bothwell's Galleries, and inspected an exhibition of work done by disabled soldiers and sailors under the scheme of training at St. Dunstan's and other similar institutions. She was astonished to discover the extraordinary proficiency attained by blinded soldiers in particular, and asked many questions with marked interest. Her Majesty subsequently witnessed a cinematograph display of the wounded heroes at their various occupations. Before the Queen's arrival the Marquis of Lansdowne, in formally opening the exhibition for the day, made a touching reference to the author of the works, said that he believed the number of disabled men approximated already to 200,000.

MILITARY CROSS.

Among the officers upon whom the King recently conferred the Military Cross in recognition of their gallantry and devotion to duty in the field was Captain Frank Alan Macartney, Indian Army. Although wounded early in the operations, he continued to lead the second wave of the assaulting troops, and showed great courage and coolness in directing his command until he was again wounded. He had previously done fine work.

FUTURE OF RACING.

The Jockey Club deputation to the Prime Minister on the future of racing has been further postponed.

SHOCKING MOTOR ACCIDENT.

HOTEL PROPRIETOR KILLED.

A shocking motor accident occurred at Knock, Claremorris, on Monday night, when Patrick Dunn, formerly proprietor of the Temperance Hotel, met with a terrible death while standing in the porch outside his door. The hotel is situate at the foot of a steep hill, and as two motor cars were descending, the property of Mr. M. Fallon, Claremorris, the second car, which was being towed, dashed into the porch, tearing up from its foundations and killing Mr. Cannon. The two men in charge of the cars, Fitzgerald and Cleary, were placed under arrest, but were released on bail yesterday morning.

IRISH ENGINEERS.

In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. BRIDGEMAN, answering Mr. Byrne, said that at a recent conference between representatives of the Irish Railway Executive and the Amalgamated Society of Engineers a proposal was made, and was being submitted to the men. The Department understood that the Dublin and Limerick members of the society voted for acceptance and a return to work, and members at Dundalk against acceptance. An arbitrator was appointed on the 18th inst. to determine the dispute involving engineers employed by the Dublin Port and Docks Board.

KINGSTOWN HARBOUR.

EAST PIER RE-OPENED.

The Commissioners of Kingstown Harbour announce that the banquette or upper level of the East Pier will be open to the public as far as the lighthouse on and after Saturday next, 30th June, the repairs rendered necessary by the storm of November, 1915, having been completed on this level. The lower level will, it is hoped, be open to the public in about a month. The Kingstown Amusements Committee have been authorised to enclose, on the occasions of band performances, the space on the lower level adjoining the band stand, and half the width of the upper level round the shelter. The other half of the upper level at the shelter will always be open to the public for free passage to and from the end of the Pier.

THE RELEASED PRISONERS.

Two of the released Irish prisoners who belong to the County Limerick had an enthusiastic reception at Rathkeale and Newcastle on Monday morning. There were ten bands in the procession that accompanied them, with contingents from various districts. John Shouldice on returning to Ballaghaderreen had a great reception. He was escorted through the town by a torchlight procession. Several young women carried Sinn Fein flags.

SINN FEIN CLUBS.

At Ballinaglera (Co. Leitrim), which has long been a stronghold of the United Irish League and the Ancient Order of Hibernians, a Sinn Fein club has just been opened. It has a large membership.
At Tulsk and Killina, Co. Roscommon, Sinn Fein clubs have been opened. The majority of the young men of the parish have joined the Tulsk club.
The General Assembly of the French Chamber of Commerce has expressed the hope that Great Britain, Japan and Russia will adopt the metric system, in order to favour a closer rapprochement with France.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

Disturbing reports are reaching Westminster from Ireland as to the growing state of unrest in that country, and I hear that the matter will soon be brought forward with considerable emphasis in the House of Lords. Several members of that assembly with whom I spoke to-day did not hesitate to ascribe the development chiefly to the release of the Sinn Fein prisoners. In connection with this subject an important piece of evidence comes in the shape of information that, whereas the number of Sinn Fein clubs a couple of weeks ago was 108 throughout Ireland, others are now in course of establishment which will raise the total to between 400 and 500.

Why Germany should go out of her way to quarrel with Norway is not easy to understand. A breach of relations between them would do Norway very little harm, for, owing to her geographical situation, the German Navy could not attack without coming into waters where it would be liable to be caught by the British Fleet. To land an army, even if she had the men to spare, would also be a risky operation for the same reason. On the other hand, Germany would lose such imports as she still receives from Norway, and would also be injured by the fact that Norway would allow the shipping of the Allies to use her territorial waters.

Perhaps the Germans are banking on the possibility that the Swedes, between whom and the Norwegians not much love is lost, would seize the opportunity to join forces with the Central Powers and attack their old partners from the land side. I hardly think that the Swedes are likely to do this. Their early enthusiasm for the Germans has cooled, while their attitude towards the Allies, which caused some unfortunate contretemps earlier in the war, has improved of late.

In Spain the suspension of the constitutional guarantees and establishment of a censorship indicate that the position is most grave. It is to be feared that revolution may break out at any moment, and that the Government will have difficulty in controlling the forces opposed to them. Probably much of the trouble is due to German intrigues as a reward for the friendliness shown to the Allies by the ruling classes. It is reported from Paris to-day that Germany, in order to keep her supporters in Spain zealous in their work, is spending more than two million francs a month.

There is a particular rumour regarding the operations of the British Army which springs up about every three months, is passed eagerly from mouth to mouth for the space of twenty-four hours, and then is relegated to limbo for a further period. Its meaning this time is the rumour, in question is having one of its periodical airings just now, and may have reached your readers through the medium of private letters. So far as I am aware, it has no more foundation to-day than it had when it first started; but, no doubt, its inventors, if they live so long, will one day have the satisfaction of seeing their dream come true, and being able to say to their friends: "There, you remember what I told you."

The Home Secretary made it clear this afternoon that the Government and the military authorities are not in favour of warning the people in case of air raids. No reason was given for the decision, but it is evident that it is a considered judgment and must be accepted. The Home Secretary stated that he had seen the Lord Mayor of London on the point, and that there would be no ringing of the great bell of St. Paul's Cathedral. Private warnings are still to be issued as before; that is to say, the railways, hospitals, police, and public authorities will receive notice.

Sir R. Hermon-Hodge is now a member of Parliament, for this afternoon he turned up again, duly provided with the necessary blue paper which, in order that there should be no misunderstanding, he carefully flourished in his hand while waiting for his sponsors. There was great cheering when he ended was safely over and the precious certificate was safely handed to Sir Courtenay Ilbert, who seemed to be quite careless of its importance; and again when the new member was formally presented to his old friend, the Speaker.

The resumed discussion in Committee in the House of Commons on the Reform Bill was, for the first part of the evening at all events, productive of little that gave ground for much talk, and Clauses 6 and 7 were added to the Bill with refreshing expedition. Then came Clause 8, which dealt chiefly with disqualifications, and here a change of a reaching importance, and one that met with practical unanimity, was made. Briefly, the Government, through Mr. Hayes Fisher, agreed to remove the pauper disqualifications for the Parliamentary vote in so far as outdoor relief was concerned, thereby removing at one sweep a blot which, in the opinion of many people, has long disfigured our franchise law. A chorus of approval went up from the House when the concession was announced. Congratulations were poured with almost embarrassing profusion upon the Treasury Bench. Much heat was engendered in the debate when the question of the conscientious objector came to be considered.

The report of the Mesopotamia Commission is not pleasant reading, and it goes far to wreck a few reputations; but it is by no means so depressing or so damaging to political personages as was that of the Dardanelles Commission. Inertia and secrecy seem to have sapped the strength of the Government of India and paralysed the military efforts of the generals. The terrible story of the sufferings endured by our soldiers, due to carelessness and neglect, is heart-rending, and punishment will be meted out to somebody for the conditions which made such a state of affairs possible.

We shall soon be entering upon the fourth year of the war, and the Prime Minister may have an opportunity of telling the people of the country what the real position of affairs is at the present time. Since the death of Lord Kitchener we have had none of those summaries of the situation in general which he used to deliver from time to time in the House of Lords, and there is a decided feeling among the people that the time has come when they should be told how we stand. The opinion that there will be another winter campaign is gaining ground, and there is certainly much to support it. The United States can scarcely be ready to put an Army of any great strength in the field before next year, nor can much succour from Russia be expected in the near future. Mr. Lloyd George, in full possession of all the facts, will, perhaps, be able to throw a little light on the situation, which is at present decidedly obscure to the general public.

With reference to rumours on the liquor question, I am able to say that the Government will consider, on receipt of the reports from the Commissions, whether one of two policies should be adopted. These are immediate steps for the purchase of the liquor trade, and prohibition for the periods of the war and demobilisation. It does not necessarily follow, of course, that either policy will be adopted.

A strong deputation of Irish distillers and wholesale wine and spirits merchants are in town, and have asked for an interview with Lord Milner. Their desire is to urge upon the Government that, since an increase is to be allowed in the sales of beer to the public, it is only fair to the interests concerned and to the public themselves that a corresponding increase should be allowed in the sales of spirits. They have been informed, however, by his lordship that the Prime Minister is the proper authority to approach upon this question, and doubtless they will now try to lay their views before that right honourable gentleman.

The Prime Minister is unable to decide whether he can receive the racing deputation to-morrow, and a further postponement seems probable.

COST OF FOOD.

LORD RHONDDA'S EFFORTS TO LIMIT PRICES.

Lord Rhondda has decided that, in order to limit further rises in the prices of the more important foodstuffs, and as far as possible to reduce the present level of prices, it will be necessary to institute much stricter and more complete measures of control in the industries engaged in the production of foodstuffs. Maximum prices require to be enforced by a strict control from the producer to the retailer, with the object of limiting profits at every stage of production and distribution to a fair remuneration for services rendered. The first step is to determine the exact cost of production and handling. For this purpose the Food Controller has already taken steps to set up a Costings Department in the Ministry of Food, consisting of highly-skilled accountants, who will have full powers to examine books, and all particulars which may assist him to arrive at accurate figures as to costs. The object of control will be to fix prices by reference to actual costs, with the addition of a normal pre-war rate of profit, independent of market fluctuations, and the margin which has already enabled the Army authorities to purchase many of their essential supplies at prices considerably below the market prices ruling for civil consumption.

THE INCREASED OUTPUT OF BEER.

VIEWS OF DUBLIN LICENSED TRADE.

DRINK AT ELECTIONS.

Yesterday the usual weekly meeting of the Committee of the Licensed Grocers' and Vintners' Protection Association was held in the offices, Commercial Buildings, Dame street, Dublin. The Chairman, Mr. John Conroy, presided.

The Chairman said that he was sure they were all glad to learn from what had been appearing in the public Press that the Government intended to permit the output of beer to be increased by 33 per cent., and it was also very gratifying to know that, at all events so far as Ireland was concerned, the gravities of the beer were to be left entirely as they would be interfered with. That was only as it should be, as their one great brewing industry was not to be exterminated. They were not at all satisfied with that slight concession, as, even with this increase of 33 per cent. on the ten million standard barrels fixed in February, the supply will be far below the eighteen million standard barrels of pre-war consumption, or the 24½ of January last. The shortages of supplies for some time back had caused a loss of employment to persons, and it was now evident that good reason for it prevailed in the councils of the Cabinet. There was only one way of meeting the demand, and that was by permitting the brewing to proceed in the circumstances of the time, the production to be in reasonable relation to the demand.

Mr. Pierce Rooney, one of the members of the recent deputation in London, made an exhaustive report with regard to several interviews which the deputation had bearing on the general subject matter.

The Chairman called attention to an amendment to be moved in Committee on the Representation of the People Bill prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor during the polling day at a General Election, and said that, inasmuch as it was not only an insult to their trade, but a slur on the electorate, it should be very strongly opposed.

The course was agreed to.

GOVERNMENT STATEMENT EXPECTED TO-MORROW.

The statement on behalf of the Government as to the expected increase in the amount of beer available for consumption is now announced until to-morrow.

THE CORK RIOTS.

INQUEST ON ABRAHAM ALLEN.

In the North Infirmary, Cork, yesterday, the coroner, Mr. J. J. M'Cabe, LL.B., opened an inquest on the body of Abraham Allen, 30 years, a labourer, residing at 2 Rock Cottages, North Mall, who was killed on Sunday night during the rioting. Detective-Inspector Swanney and Head Constable M'Guinness appeared on behalf of the Crown; Mr. Patrick O'Connor, Co. High Sheriff, represented the Lord Mayor.

At the opening of the inquiry, Mr. O'Connor said he had no power to give evidence.

Mr. O'Connor said he was instructed that there were several members of the jury who happened to be convalescent. He was sorry to see them present.

The Coroner said his duty ended when he gave his warrant to the police officer. Mr. O'Connor said no doubt no person would challenge the jury. Hannah Allen said that the deceased man was her husband. He was the sole support of herself and her child.

Mary Ann Desmond, 2 Rearden's Court, said that in reply to Mr. Swanny, that at ten o'clock on last Sunday night the deceased man came to her door and said, "Have mercy on me. I am dying." She lay down on the door, and she saw blood flowing out under the door. She went to look for a priest, and when she returned the man had been taken to the infirmary.

Mrs. Anne Desmond, 4 Rearden's Court, said that she was on Sunday night she was at the corner of Kent street. There were great crowds on both sides of the river, and she heard six or seven shots fired. She did not see any person shot. She saw a man and other men run into the court for protection. She did not see any police on either side of the deceased when the shots were fired.

Dr. Daniel F. Hegarty, assistant surgeon of the infirmary, stated he saw Allen about ten minutes to eleven on Sunday. He was unconscious when he died a few minutes. He performed a post mortem examination upon him that morning, assisted by Dr. Higgins. He had a contused wound about an inch and a quarter in length on the left thigh. The bullet had entered at the back of the same thigh and passed through. The two wounds were connected by a track through the thigh, and traced the track of the wounds, and found in the wound the femoral artery completely severed. Death was due to hemorrhage. There was no other injury to the body. The arteries in the thigh were in our opinion, doctor, severed by a sharp instrument. They did not have some sharp instrument, likely to cause it? Is

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

MESOPOTAMIA.

Although the report of the Mesopotamia Commission is one of the most distressing documents ever submitted to Parliament, says The Times, the first thing to remember about it is that it bears little relation to present conditions. We may well be pained by the disclosures and the severe strictures of the report, but it should be recognised at once that the blunders have been repaired, and that some of those responsible for the mistakes of the past have already suffered an eclipse. Having emphasised these considerations, we may add that the decision of the present Government to publish the report is, in our opinion, wise, and even necessary. This is a long war, the end is not in sight, and it is far better that earlier errors which are quite familiar to the world in outline should be frankly analysed, in order to prevent their repetition. Lord George Hamilton and his colleagues appear to have performed their difficult task with courage and strict impartiality. It is almost a relief to find that there is no special scapegoat, for the responsibility for the mistakes in Mesopotamia is very widely shared.

LORD HARDINGE AND THE REPORT.

It is understood, says The Times, that Lord Hardinge of Penshurst will seek the earliest opportunity of making a statement in the House of Lords regarding the criticisms passed upon him in the report of the Mesopotamia Commission. The rule which prevents permanent officials who are peers from addressing the Upper House will presumably be waived in his favour. Should Lord Hardinge's statement be followed by a debate, as is almost certain, the Leader of the House, Lord Curzon, will find himself in a peculiar position. The report goes far to vindicate the reasons which led him to resign the Viceroyalty of India twelve years ago, and which are constantly misunderstood in the country. He had no difference with Lord Kitchener about the reorganisation of the Army of India. The dispute arose because Lord Curzon protested against the excessive and centralised powers with which Lord Kitchener sought to invest the office of Commander-in-Chief. Lord Cameron protested that the position created was unconstitutional, and he predicted that disaster must inevitably ensue in the event of war. Lord Curzon would be less than human if he did not desire to say something about this dramatic sequel to the great controversy which closed his career in India.

THE IRISH DISORDERS.

The recent rioting in Ireland, says The Times, is inevitably being turned into a retrospective argument against the release of the rebel prisoners. Its real moral, as our Dublin Correspondent pointed out yesterday, is the strong case for maintaining law and order. Had this been being too conspicuously fulfilled, even before the arrival of the ex-prisoners added what we may hope to be a temporary outburst of excitement to the general unrest, and the responsibility for it cannot be abandoned by the British Government until Irishmen have agreed upon their own system of administration. Incidentally, we take it that these signs of weakness finally dispose of the suggestion that Mr. Duke should be Chairman of the Irish Convention. It was a bad suggestion on other grounds, as we believe that Mr. Duke himself was the first to recognise. Seeing that the whole purpose of the Convention is to give Irishmen an unfettered hand in framing an Irish Constitution, it would be sheer folly to superimpose upon it a President who, whatever his personal qualifications, stands to Ireland as the very embodiment of "Castle rule." The only possible solution of the chairmanship question is to leave it to the Convention, or to a committee of the Convention, which already contains members well fitted for the post. Meanwhile, the growth of lawlessness is a strong argument for getting the Convention established quickly. Ireland has been far too many years already within the last few days of the abandonment of Government policy in the face of an interested agitation. One conspicuous instance is the sudden arrest of a promising scheme of drainage centred in Mallow, the admirable positionement of the Ministry of Health. Any Government may decline altogether to touch such projects at the height of a great war. No Government can afford to bring them to maturity, and then to be frightened away. Irish settlement is, in some respects, the most important object of all, and the first step we have reached a point, after much blundering into the right direction, at which the only safe course is to go ahead with faith and courage. The Irish people can set their hand to the plough, and it will go ill with them if they either turn back or leave it in the furrow.

CLOSING ON LENS.

FURTHER PROGRESS REPORTED.

ADVANCE ON A TWO-MILE FRONT.

BRILLIANT ATTACK BY FRENCH.

Our troops yesterday made progress west of Lens, and extended their gains of the previous day. The enemy's positions on the Souchez River, on a front of two miles and to a depth of a thousand yards, have passed into our possession. We have also occupied the village of La Coulette. On the French front our Allies made a brilliant attack north-west of Hurtebise, and took all their objectives in a few moments. They occupied the first German line.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, FRANCE, TUESDAY, 12.30 P.M.

A successful local operation was carried out by us last night north-west of Fontaine-les-Croiselles, and resulted in the capture of a number of German prisoners. A hostile raiding party were repulsed during the night west of La Bassée.

9.12 P.M.

Further information regarding the operations carried out by us last night north-west of Fontaine les Croisilles shows that all our objectives were gained, with little loss, and 27 prisoners were taken.

Two hostile counter-attacks, delivered in considerable strength, were successfully driven off.

During the day our progress west of Lens has continued, and troops have extended their gains. The enemy's positions astride the Souchez River on a front of two miles, and to a depth of a thousand yards, have passed into our possession.

We have occupied the village of La Coulette.

As a result of the raid attempted by the enemy last night west of La Bassée 12 German prisoners were left in our hands.

In air fighting yesterday two German aeroplanes were brought down, and three other hostile machines were driven down out of control. One of our aeroplanes is missing.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Tuesday.—Yesterday, at the close of the day, after short artillery preparation, our troops made a brilliant attack to the north-west of Hurtebise on a front strongly organised by the enemy.

All our objectives were reached. In a few moments the German first line fell into our hands.

Enemy counter-attacks launched at both extremities on the captured positions, and supported by violent bombardment, were smashed by our fire.

The enemy, surprised by the rapidity of our attack, sustained heavy losses, and left more than 300 prisoners, including 10 officers, in our hands.

Various enemy surprise attacks on our small posts in Alsace, in the Ailly-en-Vonne, and in the region of Tahure, failed under our fire.

Tuesday Night.—The day was quiet, except in the region of the Laffaux Mill, where the artillery duel was lively, and in the region of Fheims, which was violently bombarded.

GERMAN OFFICIAL.

Tuesday.—Army Group of Crown Prince Rupprecht.—Artillery activity increased during the night on the front. At some places these engagements are entailing a great expenditure of munitions. Firing was directed against infantry positions only on isolated sectors, and then chiefly with the purpose of preparing for reconnoitring thrusts. These reconnaissances led to trench fighting in several instances.

Army Group of German Crown Prince.—Near Vauxaillon a strong French fire was directed against trenches which had been firmly in our hands since the battle of the Aisne in 1914. After a lively firing engagement the French attacked the hitch position recently captured by us to the north-west of Hurtebise Farm.

In spite of severe losses, which the enemy's storming wave suffered under our fire, he penetrated into our lines at some places.

An immediate counter-attack drove him out from the majority of the occupied positions. Good fighting conditions prevailing, artillery activity on other sectors on the Aisne and Champagne fronts was very lively. An enemy attempt to push our thrusting detachments to the south-east of Tahure was carried out with the intended success.

"CRAB'S CLAWS" AROUND LENS.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent at British Headquarters telegraphs:—In the neighbourhood of Lens the Germans continue to yield ground in spots under the pressure of the British and Canadian troops. The Germans have carried out much destructive and obstructive work, and Lens itself is fast being turned into a heap of ruins, with the exception of a vast mass of rubble. At the same time, there are no definite indications of any immediate intention on the part of the enemy to abandon the town, a most unfortunate and costly though his tenure of it must be proving. He is believed to have established new defensive positions in the ruined streets, and to have everywhere established perfect nests of machine guns. Meanwhile we are steadily extending our "crab's claws" formation around the environs of this mining centre.

NORWAY AND GERMANY.

POSSIBLE RUPTURE OF RELATIONS.

BOMB PLOT THAT FAILED.

A Reuter's Christiania telegram, dated Monday, says:—

Representatives of the Press were to-day shown specimens of each kind of explosive machines which have been found in Norway. There were round and rectangular bombs, infernal machines, fire bombs, and bombs made to look like pieces of coal, for steamers, and calculated to explode on railway engines or steamers. Altogether ninety-five large and twelve small bombs were found. There were also found fountain pens, with electric batteries attached to some acid and a piece of explosive substance. These pens are evidently intended to set things on fire. Two of them were empty, from which it is concluded that some of them have already been sold here. One of the men arrested stated that the bombs were destined especially for American ships leaving Norway. There were also found, thirty-three rolls of twist tobacco, thirty-two cigarettes, very hard in the middle, and thirty-one pieces of red chalk, all containing pulverised carbonundum, to be placed in the lubricators of machines, by which any kind of machine could be quickly destroyed. All these things were carefully packed in four large and three small trunks, which were found at the house Government, by which Witanen. The police had received information regarding the importation of the explosives in February last, but arrests could not be effected until last Saturday.

GRAVE CONSEQUENCES MAY FOLLOW.

Reuter's Agency learns that telegrams received from reliable sources in Norway fully confirm the extraordinary stock of explosives found in possession of the German Baron von Rautenfels and of the two Finns at Christiania. The suggestion that Germany has demanded an apology because the Norwegian Government caused a diplomatic value to be opened, has caused the most profound indignation, and any insistance on the part of Germany would probably lead to war. It is considered likely that the explosives were destined for the destruction of British vessels visiting Norwegian ports.

Information received in London from other authoritative quarters in Christiania is also to the effect that grave consequences may ensue as a result of the incident.

THE DUBLIN SCENES.

QUESTIONS IN PARLIAMENT.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

Mr. DUKE, answering Major Newman, said that he had received a report on the rioting that took place in Boyne street, Dublin, on the 18th inst. Stones were thrown through the windows of the shop of a woman whose son is in the Army Service Corps, and a soldier's wife was attacked by the crowd. Seven persons have been arrested and returned for trial.

Mr. DUKE, replying to Major Newman, said he had not received any reports relative to attacks made in Dublin last week on invalid soldiers. There had been some cases of assault on the relatives of soldiers. These had been, or would be, dealt with by the police magistrate.

Major NEWMAN—Is it not a fact that the reason for these attacks was that the people were displaying the Union Jack?

Mr. DUKE—I am not sure about the particular case to which the hon. member refers, but certainly there were cases a week ago in which the display of the Union Jack was the occasion upon which violence was offered to persons who displayed it.

NEW GREEK CABINET

TO BE FORMED BY M. VENEZELOS.

THE KING IN AGREEMENT.

A Reuter's Paris telegram, dated Monday, says:—

An Athens telegram says M. Zaimis has informed the King of his desire to present the resignation of the Cabinet. The King during his conversation yesterday with M. Jonnart declared he was in agreement with him to entrust to M. Venezelos the task of forming a new Cabinet.

An Athens telegram, dated Monday, says:—M. Venezelos arrived at Athens this morning by motor car. He will be received by the King, who will entrust him with the formation of a new Cabinet.

The resignation of M. Zaimis, though not yet officially announced, is admitted by M. Zaimis himself. It is stated on good authority that M. Venezelos will form a Cabinet at the latest on Wednesday next.

As a result of last night's demonstration the Allied troops have entered Athens to assist in the maintenance of order.

It is stated that the dismissal of the Chief of Police will be demanded, as well as the punishment of the organisers of last night's demonstration, whose names have been ascertained.

A Reuter's despatch from Salonika on Monday says:—

Out of the 350 communes into which Thessaly is divided, 336 have already adhered to the Venezelist Government. Thus, practically the whole Province has remained true to the principles of Liberalism, as shown at the Parliamentary election of June, 1915, which King Constantine audaciously ignored. French troops yesterday occupied Bralo, south of Lamia, where a railway and a road intersect the highway to Itea, on the Gulf of Corinth. Another waggon load of prohibited rifles have been collected in the interior of Thessaly, and transported to Larissa. The negotiations at Keratiani, between the delegates of the Venezelist Government and the Athens Government are considered virtually concluded, and the transfer of the Provisional Government to Athens is only a question of days.

THE SPITALFIELDS SCHEME.

MEMORIAL TO THE TREASURY.

The following Memorial, signed by the Chairman and Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce Housing Reform Committee, the Dublin Citizens' Association, and the Dublin Tenants' Association, on behalf of their respective Committees, has been forwarded to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury:—

MEMORIAL.

On behalf of our respective Associations, which are acting in concert on the subject of this memorial, we beg to call your Lordships' consideration of the Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury a statement of certain facts in connection with the Dublin Corporation scheme for the erection of working men's dwellings on what is known as Spitalfields Area in this city, for which a Treasury loan has been granted.

At the Local Government Board inquiry held into this scheme in April last it was disclosed in the evidence—

1. That for more than two years the Local Government Board had refused sanction to this scheme as a building scheme on the following grounds stated in the letter of Sir Henry Robinson (Vice-President of the Local Government Board of Ireland) of the 4th of April, 1916, to Mr. W. Field, M.P.:—

The Board cannot give their assent to a building scheme which, in their view, is unfavourably placed.

The object of the Spitalfields order was to enable an unhealthy area to be cleared, and dwellings to be built on the site as at present acquired by the Corporation means in effect the building of new houses on the area acquired. To rebuild this area without first clearing the adjoining unhealthy area would be a fatal blunder, and would result in the area acquired is of a most irregular shape, and it is questionable whether, even if built, it could be advantageously used for building purposes.

2. That in December last the Local Government Board altered the area and extended the Commission to build on the site, although the objectional features thereof were unaltered, and although at that time no estimate, even approximate, had been submitted by the Corporation, and no public inquiry had been held.

3. That the situation was the same when the Chief Secretary, in March, 1917, announced to the House of Commons that the Treasury to the advances required by the Corporation.

4. That an approximate estimate was submitted in answer to a question by the Under-Treasurer, and according to this estimate there will be a loss on the scheme for a period of 60 years, beginning with a loss of £1,661 for the first year, and increasing in subsequent years diminishing by £25 a year.

5. That the Corporation intend to fix the rent of each cottage at 5s. 6d. per week, or 8s. less than the economic rent.

6. That the site cleared is insignificant in size, surrounded on all sides by some of the worst slum property in the city.

The report of the Departmental Committee, appointed by the Local Government Board in 1913 established—

1. That the erection of 14,000 new dwellings will be necessary to meet adequately the urgent housing requirements of the working classes in Dublin.

2. That large areas of virgin soil were brought within the boundaries of the city by the Boundaries Extension Act, on the representation of the Dublin Corporation, and these were urgently needed for housing purposes.

3. That the Departmental Committee were strongly in favour of building on these areas, and became of the opinion that the cost of land building purposes would thereby be postponed until they could be acquired for actual value.

In submitting these facts for the consideration of the Treasury we are instructed to state:

That the solution of the urgent housing problem, the financial stability of the municipality, and the physical and property of the city are likewise gravely prejudiced by schemes of the kind; and the situation becomes hopeless when such schemes are facilitated by the Local Government Board.

That it is inconceivable, in view of the evidence given at the recent inquiry, that a favourable decision could have been made by the inspector who conducted the inquiry, and we submit that, in justice to the interests involved, that report should be published.

That as it is not possible for the Treasury to reverse its action in reference to the Spitalfields area, and as every penny of the liability for that action will fall on the rates of the city our exceptional terms should be granted, and repayment of principal only should be demanded.

That our Associations, which exist for the purposes of promoting housing and other city reforms, and for prudent and economical municipal administration, include in their membership the bulk of the ratepayers of the city, and a large representation of the working classes.

And your petitioners will ever pray.

THE CORPORATION BUILDING SCHEMES.

The eighth annual meeting of the Dublin Citizens' Association (Incorporated) was held last evening at the offices, 9 Dawson street. Mr. M. J. Rantan, T.C., presided.

The annual report of the Central Council of the Association alluded with regret to the deaths of Alderman Golton, M.P.; Mr. Geo. Perry, and Mr. Charles A. James, all active workers of the Dublin Association, as well as members and practical supporters of the Association. In a summary of the year's principal activities, the achievements of the Association in regard to city and poor rates, Corporation contracts, Stanley street workshops, and proposed Union amalgamation were referred to. In regard to the latter the Association expressed astonishment that the Local Government Board had sanctioned the Spitalfields housing scheme. They were convinced that a State housing department for the entire United Kingdom, or for Ireland only, with representative control like that of the Congested Districts Board, was the most practicable near-future solution of the problem of the city housing of the thousands of workers and their families. Sir Lambert Ormsby, M.D., Chairman of the Association for the Housing of the Very Poor, had publicly expressed substantial agreement with the Council's views on that matter. The Council remained convinced that an extension of the boundaries of the city, including Rathmines and Pembroke, and involving wards fewer in number but of larger area, would, with proportional representation, result in a reconstituted Corporation, which would be efficiently discharge the duties of local administration, provide better all-round public services, and reduce the rates.

The Chairman, moving the adoption of the report and accounts, said that he thought the reduction in the city rates could be attributed to the activities of the Association and its deputation.

Mr. Bentley remarked that something to reflect upon was that since 1892 the valuation of the city had increased from £690,000 to £1,357,000, and the rates collected from £270,588 to £595,772. The present Corporation building schemes involved a loss to the city of £15,000 a year. If Pembroke housing schemes were self-supporting, why could not Dublin schemes be so? Dublin was only on the verge of the rebuilding of the slums, and would not be able to bear the burden of a quarter of a million a year, which would be involved by the total scheme for building 14,000 houses. He suggested that the Government, who had got the city into that condition, should take over the housing scheme and provide what was needed from the Treasury instead of the city providing it. (Applause.)

The report and accounts were adopted.

REPORT OF MESOPOTAMIAN COMMISSION.

INDIAN OFFICIALS CENSURED.

GREAT RISK ACCEPTED BY THE VICEROY.

EQUIPMENT FOR A FRONTIER INCIDENT.

MAIN CAUSES OF THE FAILURE.

GENERAL TOWNSHEND AND BAGDAD.

The report of the Commission appointed to inquire into the operations of war in Mesopotamia, together with a separate report by Commander Wedgwood, M.P., was issued last night in the form of a Blue Book of nearly 200 pages.

The report goes into the origin of the Mesopotamia expedition and the early operations at Nasiriyeh, and finds that it was a justifiable enterprise, but one of such a character that is required during its inception and development the most careful watching and preparation. The division of responsibility was between the India Office and the Indian Government, the former undertaking the policy and the latter the management of the expedition, which was, in the circumstances, unworkable. The Secretary of State, who controlled the policy, did not have cognisance of the capacity of the expedition to carry out the policy. The Indian Government, who managed the expedition, did not accompany developments of policy with the necessary preparations, even when they themselves proposed those developments.

The scope of the objective of the expedition was never sufficiently defined in advance so as to make each successive move part of a well thought-out and matured plan.

The attempt in India entirely to control and regulate the wants of the expedition from Simla was a fatal administrative mistake. The Commander-in-Chief himself, or his representatives, acting as liaison officers, should, from time to time, have visited Mesopotamia with a view to keeping the Headquarters Staff in touch with the needs of the expedition.

In consequence of such want of touch, the military authorities at Simla did not appreciate or realise the difficulties of campaigning in Mesopotamia, and, from such lack of knowledge, failed to make sufficient provision for surmounting the difficulties and drawbacks.

The advance to Bagdad under the conditions existing in October, 1915, was an offensive undertaking based upon political and military miscalculations, and attempted with tired and insufficient forces, and inadequate preparation.

The result in the surrender of more than a Division of our finest fighting troops, and the casualties incurred in the ineffective attempts to relieve Kut amounted to some 23,000 men. The moral loss associated with these military failures was less than might have been anticipated, owing to the deep impression made upon the enemy by the splendid fighting power to combat occurred by the splendid fighting power of the British and Indian Forces engaged.

SHARE IN RESPONSIBILITY.

Various authorities and high officials are connected with the sanction given to this untoward advance, each and all, in our judgment, according to their relative responsibility, must be made responsible for the errors in judgment to which they were parties, and which formed the basis of the policy or orders.

The weightiest share of responsibility lies with Sir John Nixon, whose confident optimism was the main cause of the decision to advance. Two other persons principally were in India, the Viceroy (Lord Hardinge), and the Commander-in-Chief (Sir Beauchamp Duff); in England, the Military Secretary of the India Office (Sir Edmund Barrow), the Secretary of State for India (Mr. Austen Chamberlain), and the War Committee of the Cabinet.

We pass these names in the order and sequence of responsibility. The expert advisers of the Government who were consulted also approved the advance, and are responsible for their advice; but the papers submitted to us suggest that the approval of the naval and military experts was reluctant, and was, perhaps, partly induced by a natural desire not to disappoint the hopes of advantage to the general situation which the Government entertained. It is, however, notable that the experts unanimously anticipated no difficulty in the advance on Bagdad, but only in holding it.

We do not attach any share in the responsibility for the decision to advance to Bagdad to the counsels of the Secretary of State for India and of the Viceroy, as we have been unable to ascertain from the evidence placed before us that the advance on Bagdad was ever brought before them in such a manner as to allow them to give their personal advice and opinion upon it.

We have included the War Committee of the Cabinet and the Secretary of State for India amongst those upon whom responsibility for this inadventure rests. It is true that the War Committee and the Secretary of State acted upon the opinion of their expert military advisers, and that the Secretary of State only gave his assent to the advance after he had received an assurance from the General on the spot that he had an available force sufficient for his purpose. But so long as the system of responsible departmental administration exists in this country those who are political heads of departments in time of war, whether they be civilian or military, cannot be enable gravely prejudiced by schemes of the kind; and the situation becomes hopeless when such schemes are facilitated by the Local Government Board.

That it is inconceivable, in view of the evidence given at the recent inquiry, that a favourable decision could have been made by the inspector who conducted the inquiry, and we submit that, in justice to the interests involved, that report should be published.

That as it is not possible for the Treasury to reverse its action in reference to the Spitalfields area, and as every penny of the liability for that action will fall on the rates of the city our exceptional terms should be granted, and repayment of principal only should be demanded.

That our Associations, which exist for the purposes of promoting housing and other city reforms, and for prudent and economical municipal administration, include in their membership the bulk of the ratepayers of the city, and a large representation of the working classes.

PARLIAMENT.

RE-EXAMINATION OF EXEMPTED MEN.

COMMITTEE OF INQUIRY.

REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE BILL.

HOUSE OF COMMONS—Tuesday.

The SPEAKER took the chair at 2.45 p.m.

NATIONALISTS AND THE MILITARY SERVICE ACT.

Mr. DILLON pointed out to the Leader of the House that the Irish Nationalist Party had not got their proper representation on the Committee which would deal with the Military Service (Review of Exemptions) Act.

Mr. BONAR LAW said that the matter had not been called to his attention until that morning. He believed it was accurate thation such Committees there had always been two members of the Irish Party, and if the hon. member proposed an additional member he would not be prepared to oppose it.

WRIT FOR SOUTH BELFAST.

On the motion of Lord EDMUND TALBOT, a new writ for South Belfast was issued to fill the place of the late Mr. James Chambers, K.C., Solicitor-General for Ireland.

INQUIRY INTO REVIEW OF EXEMPTIONS.

Mr. BONAR LAW moved the appointment of a Select Committee to inquire into, and report upon, the instructions issued by the War Office with regard to the administration of the Military Service (Review of Exemptions) Act, 1917, and the method, conduct, and general administration of medical examinations under that Act, the said Committee to consist of Sir Godfrey Baring, Mr. Montague Barlow, Mr. Cochrane, Colonel Faber, Colonel Stretton, Mr. Hugh Law, Mr. Nield, Mr. Pringle, Mr. Caradoc Rees, Mr. Shortt, and Mr. Sutton

Mr. WEDGWOOD and Mr. SNOWDEN appealed to the Government to extend the scope of the inquiry, so as to embrace all cases of re-examination.

Mr. BONAR LAW said he regretted that he could not adopt the suggestion, because it would involve raking up the whole of the past, and an amount of work which the House of Commons would not be justified in putting upon the War Office. It was, he thought, a pity that when the Government made a concession it was met by a demand that they should go further and further, and, in this case, to a length which would not be in the interests of the country.

REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE BILL.

The House went into Committee on the Representation of the People Bill.

On Clause 5, which enacts a qualifying period of six months, tracting influence in the mobilisation of outside experience. The control of the expedition is thus narrowed down to control by two high officials, who, in the main, entirely depended upon their official information from Mesopotamia.

EFFECT OF THE ECONOMIC ATMOSPHERE.

Dealing with the atmosphere of economy up to the date of the war, and the check upon the military preparations in India, the Commissioners say:—Sir Douglas Haig, in 1911, put forward a memorandum suggesting that Indian military establishments might have to furnish an Expeditionary Force armed and equipped to meet a European Army. He contemplated the possibility of war with Turkey, supported by Germany. But this memorandum did not receive the approval of the Viceroy, Lord Hardinge. No steps were taken. So far as Mesopotamia was concerned, the consequences were unfortunate.

There was lack of plans and lack of preparations. Sir O'Moore Creagh, Commander-in-Chief, constantly called attention to the deficiencies of the Indian Army, with no result. In fact they were ignored, and to such extent was he over-ridden by the Finance Department and the Viceroy that he resigned before his time. But he cannot entirely escape criticism for not taking more definite action at an earlier stage of his tenure of office.

The net military expenditure for 1914-15 was actually £50,000 less than the estimate made for the year before war was declared, and on the assumption that the expenditure would be on a peace basis. Lord Hardinge and Sir Wm. Meyer, finance member, recognised the financial strength of India's position, but in introducing the financial statement of 1915-16 Sir W. Meyer stated:—" Our chief economy occurs under military services."

HOW REQUISITIONS WERE TREATED.

Requisitions from Mesopotamia were reached, General Cowper, in January, 1916, telegraphed that unless they got adequate shipping Sir Percy Lake would have to abandon the idea of relieving Kut. In reply, Sir Beauchamp Duff wrote:—

" Please warn General Cowper, if anything of this sort again occurs, or I receive any more querulous or petulant demands for shipping, I shall at once remove him from the force, and refuse him any further employment of any kind."

The Commissioners add that at the time there were large numbers of troops and guns at Basra, which could not be moved to the front for want of transport, and General Cowper's warning was realised. In some cases Lord Hardinge had complained to Sir Beauchamp Duff of the tone of several recent telegrams from Mesopotamia to Simla. This partly accounts for Sir Beauchamp's annoyance. But, in our judgment, Lord Hardinge's complaint was altogether unwarranted, and the reprimand addressed to General Cowper was intemperate and ill-advised.

SIR JOHN NIXON'S APPOINTMENT.

Regarding Sir John Nixon's appointment the Commissioners say—Upon the two essential considerations governing the selection to capture Bagdad Sir John Nixon was seriously at fault. He underrated the difficulty of transporting reinforcements and supplies from the port of embarkation to the scene of action, and he seriously underestimated the number of his opponents, and miscalculated the dates at which they would arrive.

We have evidence that reticence was carried so far that important Staff officers were kept in ignorance of impending movements, and were consequently unable to make, in time, the requisite preparations.

STRIKING REVELATIONS.

In a separate part, dealing with the origin of the expedition, there are some striking revelations. The report says—The Imperial Government, in initiating the expedition, apparently did not fully realise that such an expedition, if once started, might require reinforcements and equipment, and was sure to provoke violent opposition from the Turks.

The force, which amounted to a division, was armed and equipped as for a frontier expedition, and its medical equipment was even below that scale.

As soon as we had established our occupation of Basra, it was suggested by our Political Agents at the Persian Gulf that an early announcement should be made that the occupation would be permanent. This suggestion was peremptorily swept on one side by His Majesty's Government, on the ground that it would be utterly contrary to the agreement come to between the Allies, if the occupation of any conquered country were announced to be permanent, without waiting for the final settlement to be made at the close of the war.

" TOWNSHEND'S REGATTA."

The advance on Amara (or Townshend's regatta, as it was called locally) was very successfully carried out. Light General Boats of very light draught were converted into light armoured gunboats, and were very effective. The enemy was pursued with unremitting vigour. On June 3rd Amara was reached, and General Townshend, with twenty-two sailors and soldiers, achieved the surrender of 700 Turks. As a military operation, this action was audacious, well planned and well timed, and it deserves high praise, as it achieved great objects with comparatively small loss of life.

THE GENERAL'S MISGIVINGS.

Misgivings as to the advisability of an advance to Bagdad were present in the mind of General Townshend as late as November 2nd, 1915, for on that day he wrote to the Viceroy a letter, in which these expressions occurred:—

" These troops of mine are tired, and their tails are not up, but slightly down. The Mahomedans are not pleased at approaching the sacred precincts of Salman Pak, at Ctesiphon. The troops are not confident, and have had enough. As it is now, the British soldier and the Sepoy, as the Roman soldier did under Hannibal, look over their shoulders, and are fearful of the distance from the sea, and go down, in consequence, with every imaginable disease."

The Commissioners' comment is that these are not the words of a General commanding a force in the field who has confidence in the capacity of his troops to achieve the task assigned to them. In the result, General Townshend and his force, for the first time, met with defeat, instead of victory, and the report finds that this was due to the exceptional difficulty of the military task imposed upon him; for the numerical odds and adverse conditions with which they had to contend were too much, even for their fighting superiority.

THE VICEROY TAKES THE RISK.

A warning, conveyed by a private telegram of October 21st, from the Secretary of State to the Viceroy, of a possible concentration of 60,000 Turks at Bagdad, in January, 1916, was acknowledged by the Viceroy in a private and reasoned telegram, accepting the risk. The information thus conveyed introduced a new factor into the situation, and one which ought to have been forwarded to Sir John Nixon. Sir John Nixon, in his evidence, could not recollect receiving this information, and Sir Beauchamp Duff informed the Commission that this telegram was not transmitted to Mesopotamia. He accounted for this oversight by the fact that it was a private telegram to the Viceroy, of which he had no official cognisance, nor could it find in his department. Sir John, however, intimated that if he had been warned in time, he could have stopped the advance to Bagdad, even on November 17th—i.e., a month later than this telegram. On that day—i.e., four days before the battle of Ctesiphon—the War Office telegraphed from London to General Nixon that General von der Goltz had left for Bagdad on November 10th, and that 30,000 Turks were marching from Anatolia to Irak. On the 20th General Nixon replied—

" For more than a fortnight my own agents have been giving me similar news of a large force under von der Goltz, but at present I do not accept these reports as conclusive, for various reasons."

Sir John Nixon's over-confidence in his ability to crush the Turkish forces between him and Bagdad, the report says, might have induced him, in October, to ignore the warning from London as to the large enemy reinforcements which might be brought down to Bagdad. Still, the neglect to convey to him so vital a piece of information reflects seriously on the system which allowed such inadvertence to be possible. If the substance of this important telegram had been conveyed to the Viceroy in an official, instead of a private, telegram, it would, as a matter of course, have been transmitted to Mesopotamia.

THE MAIN CAUSES OF FAILURE.

Sir Percy Lake summarises the three main causes of failure as being premature attacks, inadequate transport, and the exceptionally unfavourable weather. The Commissioners endorse these findings, and add another—namely, insufficient numerical superiority over a strongly entrenched enemy. The Commission more than once refer to the great increase in the number of private telegrams exchanged, on official business, between the Secretary of State for India and the Viceroy. They criticise this practice, and say that the Secretary of State proposed to make some change in the matter.

The report is signed by Lord George Hamilton (Chairman) and all the other Commissioners, with the exception of Commander Wedgwood, who, in a separate report, declares that throughout the tenure of office of Lord Hardinge the Indian Government showed little desire to help, and some desire actually to obstruct, the successful prosecution of the war. He finds that the responsibility for the Mesopotamian failure rests principally on the Government of India, which refused, in fact, of the Viceroy and the Commander-in-Chief (Sir Beauchamp Duff), and that no blame attaches to anyone in this country for the initiation of the Bagdad advance.

The Minister of Public Worship in Germany has ordered that religious instruction in the Polish language shall be resumed in all schools in the Province of Posen.

Second Lieutenant H. E. Lindé.—Mrs. Lindé, Hillside, Delgany, has received a notification from the War Office that her only son, Second Lieutenant H. E. Lindé, has died from wounds received in action. He was educated at Corrig School, Kingstown, and Ardingly College, Sussex. Subsequently he went to Canada, but returned at the outbreak of the war. He joined the Cadet Company of the Leinster Regiment, and later received his commission in the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers. He was wounded on the 7th of June, and died on the 24th, at a casualty clearing station.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE IRISH CONVENTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Even at the eleventh hour is it too late to appeal to the All-for-Ireland Party and to the leaders of Sinn Fein to reconsider their refusal to nominate representatives to the Convention? The governing words of the terms of reference are: "A Convention of Irishmen of all parties for the purpose of producing a scheme of Irish self-government." Could anything be wider? The Prime Minister further laid down: "Every man who enters into the Convention is pledged to do his best as an Irishman, as a patriot, as a man of honour, to settle the controversy. . . . No proposal on any side for the better government of Ireland can be shut out from discussion under the terms of reference, and no one—I want to make this quite clear—by the mere fact of going to the Convention can be assumed to be pledged to the acceptance or the rejection of any particular proposal or method for the government of Ireland."

These definitions, which cover the whole ground and give to Irishmen of every school of thought the widest liberty and the utmost safeguards, have not received the attention which the merit. Parties have sought to read the reference their own way; individuals are striving to instruct the Convention what it is to do and how it is to do it. I wish to avoid both these impertinences, which can only add to the difficulties of a body whose task is well nigh impossible, yet whose failure in that task must do infinite harm to Ireland and put Irish public men to open shame before the world.

I would ask the All-for-Ireland Party and Sinn Fein the straight question: Does taking part in the Convention involve for them a sacrifice or a break with cherished beliefs as great, or anything like as great, as the Irish Unionists are making by sending representatives to it? Surely the foundation of Mr. William O'Brien's policy rested on "conference, conciliation, and consent." The Conference doors stand open; do his followers refuse to enter, bearing conciliation with them and within labouring to bring about consent?

Yesterday I heard Messrs. MacNeill and de Valera speak at Tulla, in the East Clare election. This is not the place to criticise their policy. I say, after thirty years' experience of public life and public men, that I have never heard a cause pleaded with more transparent honesty and loftier patriotism. With them, be they right or wrong, it was Ireland first, last, and all the time, and no National Convention can be complete and authoritative without such as they.

The Convention may very well fail to produce a scheme of Irish self-government. It cannot wholly fail if, over a period of many weeks, it has brought into confidential and intimate relations Irishmen of every party. If failure there must be, let it be due to honest differences after honest endeavour, and not to petty recrimination; but do not let the men of to-day and of the future be able to say that the Convention was foredoomed by the abstention of groups whose chief title to respect is their love of Ireland.—Yours, etc.,

J. O'CALLAGHAN WESTROPP.

Clonmore, O'Callaghan's Mills, Co. Clare, June 25th, 1917.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I have reason to believe that, if Ireland were offered her independence as a separate Crown Colony or within the British Federation, a plebiscite of the whole country, by a preponderating majority, would accept this solution. Let Ireland be divided into four, or three, provinces, if you will. Each province should manage its own affairs, and each province should have the right—not to be compelled—to nominate a representative to a Central Parliament in Dublin. Let Ireland control its own finances, and have its own flag, as Canada, Australia, Africa, and New Zealand. There is a great deal in sentiment, especially in Ireland.

Why does not the Government make such an offer, or suggest it to the coming Convention? I do not believe that this proposal is Utopian.—Yours, etc.,

ALDERMAN COOTE.

THE GOVERNMENT AND IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The concluding sentence in the extract from the Daily Mail's leading article, "Ireland on Trial," which appears in this morning's Irish Times, reads: "We have all pretty well made up our minds that Ireland cannot be governed by force."

Surely, sir, we in Ireland have quite made up our minds that Ireland cannot be governed by weakness?—Yours, etc.,

THE PRICE OF BREAD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—As a life-long reader of the Irish Times, I venture to differ with the suggestion contained in one of your leading articles to-day that bakers are having a finger in the "profiteering" pie. I have seen similar statements in some of your cross-Channel contemporaries, whose opinions do not carry much weight with me, but it is a different matter when I see these views expressed in your paper.

In these times, when we hear so much about "cents-per-centers," would you consider it fleecing the public to sell to them at 20s. an article costing you 19s. 2d.? This is what my firm has been doing, and, from what I have heard from my friends in the baking trade, I consider that we have been very fortunate to come out so well. Do not for a moment imagine that those of us who have managed to secure this 4 per cent. profit have not earned it well—it is the reward of work and worry such as has never been known in business before.

If it would help to convince you that all traders are not ex-officio "profiteers"—and I am sure that most bakers would have no hesitation in doing likewise—I will be glad to furnish you with a certified copy of our trading account for your own inspection. The immediate cause of my writing this letter to you—a thing which I have never done before—may interest you. A friend and customer of ours pointed out your article to me less than ten minutes after I had read it myself. I took him straight to my office and showed him my private ledger. He apologised, and insisted on my writing to you immediately, which I was not altogether inclined to do.—Yours, etc.,

" MASTER BAKER."

EAST CLARE ELECTION.

RIVAL MEETINGS.

Mr. P. Lynch, K.C., with a party of friends, travelled from Ennis yesterday to Ballyvaughan, in the north-western part of the county, where there was a fair, to canvass. Sympathisers of Mr. de Valera also visited the place, and rival meetings were held.

At Mr. Lynch's meeting Mr. M. J. Gaynor, J.P., D.C., presided. He reminded the meeting of the devotion of the Irish Party to the interests of the Irish people since the days of Parnell, to the record of success, and of the claims of Mr. Lynch as a "Clare man for Clare."

Mr. Lynch, who had a most cordial reception, said he had been asked to come to Clare. He was there to ask the men of Burren to vote, not for a personality, for himself, but for the policy for which he stood, the policy that had been tried and found true since the establishment of the Land League in 1880. (Hear, hear.)

Here a man in the crowd cried out that Mr. Lynch had been a Crown Prosecutor, and referred to his prosecution of Clare men in Cork City.

Mr. Lynch—My friend, you are mistaken in your facts. I challenge any man to point to any single act of mine, the memory of which would cause me to turn away ashamed. (Cheers.) Never in Cork, or out of Cork, did I stand in a criminal court against a man of the County Clare, and I never prosecuted a Clare man. I have consistently refused to do so. (Cheers.) Mr. Lynch, at the close of his speech, addressing Father Meehan, C.C., who was waiting to address Mr. de Valera's supporters, said he should thank him for his kindly counselling of his opponent's supporters, and hoped that that was the spirit in which the campaign would be fought—(hear, hear)—that goodwill and self-restraint would be exhibited on both sides.

Mr. Lynch and Father Meehan then cordially shook hands, and the former offered the latter the use of his motor to address his meeting.

THE SINN FEIN MEETING.

Immediately afterwards the Sinn Fein meeting was held, and was presided over by Mr. P. J. O'Loughlen, Co.C., who said that the cause for which de Valera stood was the only just and true one. He appealed to the people to give their votes for Eamon de Valera, scholar, soldier, and statesman. (Cheers.)

Rev. Father Meehan, C.C., next spoke, and made an appeal to have the election carried out in a gentlemanly and self-respecting manner. The beating they were going to give Mr. Lynch was to be debited to the Irish Party. The reforms they had got during the last 25 years were not got in the House of Commons, but at home and by Sinn Fein means at work in Ireland.

Mr. G. Nicholls (Galway) said that the speech of Mr. Lynch was like a dose of salts —(laughter)—but Clare men were too clever to be fooled by him.

Some local speakers followed, and Mr. Lynch's party returned to Ennis by way of Lisdoonvarna, Kilfenora, and Corofin, receiving a very cordial reception at each place.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

DUBLIN STOCK EXCHANGE.

"MATURE" LAND STOCK BETTER. DUBLIN DISTILLERS RALLY. DUNLOP RUBBERS LOWER.

DUBLIN, TUESDAY EVENING.

There was only very moderate business current on Change to-day with a certain amount of irregularity in price movements. The feature was the recovery in Dublin Distillers, especially the Ord. shares. Dunlops did not move much. Guinness closed this turn lower, while Marconis and Textiles were somewhat on offer. The Funds were mostly quiet. Consols closed unaltered. War Loans fell ⅛ to ¼. "Mature" Land Stock was 1 higher. Irish Land Stock closed steady.

Scarcely any interest was taken in Bank shares, and only a couple of transactions took place. Munsters rose ½, but Nationals fell ¼ to 10½.

Considerable interest attached to Breweries and Distilleries in view of the closing of the trading year for some of the companies whose shares are most under notice at present. Guinness Ord. eased ¼ to 24½. John Jameson and Son Def. further rose ½ to 6½ yesterday. Dublin Distillers, which were bid for late last evening after yesterday's slump, opened in good request to-day. The Ord. rallied 3s. to 25s. and the Pref. 9d. to 7/6s. 9d. The Deb. Stock was wanted.

In Telegraphs, Marconi Ord. fell back to £5 8s. and Canadians realised 10s. 9d.

Home Rails were almost neglected, and presented no feature.

Tramways were idle. An odd lot of Dublin United Def. was picked up ½ under yesterday's enhanced level. Provincial Ord. remain scarce on the traffic prospects.

A fair amount of attention was given to Dunlop issues, but most of the alterations were slight. Dunlop Rubber Ord. gave way 2s. to 65s. 6d. for an odd lot. Parent Tyre Ord. were 3d. better at 25s. buyers, but the Def. and Pref. fell 3d. each to 35s. 6d. and 15s. 9d. respectively.

Alliance and Dublin Consumers Gas shares were higher at 54 for a small lot.

In Bank shares, Belands Ord. again fetched 8½, but the best bid for the Pref., shares was 6 x.d., compared with 7, last price dealt in some time since, but the latter figure included the dividend for the current half-year.

Property shares were quietly steady.

As regards Manufacturing shares, English Sewing Cotton Ord. relapsed 1s. 3d. to 48s., and English Printers 1½d. to 18s. British American Tobacco 5 per. Pref. rose 4½d. to 19s. 3d., and Ivers Bros. "C" Pref. 3d. to 20s. 9d. Helys Pref. receded better as 19s. x.d. Burke Ord. rose 2d. to 65s. 3d. Delphin Hotel Ord. marked 2s. for an exceptional lot.

Dividend—Clontarf and Hill of Howth Tramroad, the usual 3 p.c. per annum interim.

LONDON STOCK MARKETS SATISFACTORY.

EFFECT OF FOREIGN FACTORS.

RUBBER SHARES WEAKER.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Tuesday.

Underlying conditions on the Stock Exchange remained fairly satisfactory. If war news for the moment provides no special stimulus, and the situation in Russia remains obscure. Favourable developments at Athens also from a market view-point have been largely counteracted by the grave position in Spain, which threatens to embarrass France. In these circumstances, the general note of markets was one of caution, and prices were easily affected in whichever way. The gilt-edged markets see-sawed narrowly. There was a fairly pronounced recovery in the 4½ p.c. Loan at one time, but it was not maintained, and the quotation was finally unchanged at 94. The 5 p.c. Loan was also unchanged, but the 3½ p.c. Loan gained ¼ at 86¼. Consols fell that fraction to 54¼. Among Miscellaneous gilt-edged securities business was of a light and spotty character. The Irish Land Loans merely repeated previous quotations. Bank of England Stock attracted 198¼, and 200¾ was the cost.

ALLIED BONDS IRREGULAR.

In the Foreign market Allied Bonds were a checkered appearance, though their general undertone was good. Russian Fives fell back a point to 75½, but the Fours held their ground. French Fives picked up ¼ at 80¼, and the Japanese group kept firm, though changes were unimportant. Chinese did little more than mark time. Italian Rentes lost a point, but there was a reaction of a point to 97 in Spanish Fours on the news from Madrid that the constitutional guarantees had been suspended. Among enemy issues conditions were quite nominal. Hungarian Rentes rallied ¼ to 42, after yesterday's set-back. Among South Americans Peruvians were firm, and there were some gains of ½ to 2 among Brazilian Securities.

HOME RAILS LISTLESS.

In the Home Railway market conditions were listless throughout. There was little selling, but quotations sagged off here and there from lack of support. Passenger Stocks were dull with the rest of the market. Undergrounds were unvaried, but Metropolitan Ords. were idle.

AMERICANS IMPROVE.

In the American market there were numerous gains averaging a reflecting overnight improvement in the other side. Reading rose 1¼ to 95, or 65 were a dollar to the good, and New York Ontarios, at 25, registered a similar improvement.

CANADIANS AND MEXICANS DULL.

Canadian Pacifics were dull, but closed unchanged at 177½. Grand Trunk Guaranteed Fours receded ¼ to 57. There was no other change. Mexican Railway Prefs. weakened ½, but some Argentine Rails were ¼ to ½ better, and Entre Rios Pref. recovered 2, closing at 54½.

INDUSTRIALS IRREGULAR.

Marconis did not vary, and Armstrongs remained unsettled. Though steady, was slow. Armaments remained unsettled. The former jumped 3 to 168½. Armstrongs at 37/3 were the better, and Brown shares were slightly harder. Lambert Bros., closing at 2½, after being over that level, held firm. Breweries were favourably influenced by the recent announcement by the Government of a State purchase scheme. Allsopp 3½ per cent. Pref. was 2 better. Hudson's Bays advanced ½ to 7½. Among Shipping, the Mails jumped to 115½. Khedivial Mails, Argentine Nav., and Peninsular were all cheerful. Dunlop Rubbers mended ½ to ¾, but Parent Tyre issues did not vary. Supply issues were steady, but slow.

MINING MARKET DEPRESSED.

A dragging tendency was apparent among Kaffirs in the Mining Market, owing to the uncertainty of the general Rand outlook in view of the growing shortage of materials. Among Diamonds, De Beers were merely steady on the 40 per cent. dividend, and the rest of the group was quiet. Among Rhodesians irregularity prevailed, and Tanks. were offered. Westralians maintained a slow appearance, and Russians lacked and filled moderately. As regards Base Metal shares, there was only a very limited volume of business. The price of copper was unaltered, and tin rose 5/- per ton.

RUBBER SHARES DULL.

The price of rubber was to-day 2/4½ per lb. In the share market there was a shrinkage in a good many quotations, but a better tone was noticeable in the afternoon. Bargain hunters made their appearance, attracted by the set-back of the last few days, but, as frequently happens on these occasions, the actual supply of stock was found to be quite small as soon as definite buyers came forward. Consequently, while some were glad to realise, or sell, others were equally difficult to buy at current quotations, and this, of course, meant that business was restricted. Anglo-Malay were up to 13/9½, but Anglo-Java were lower at 6/7. Bikam were 4/3 bid, and Bukit changed hands at 33/-. Bukit Kajang hardened to 70/-. Damansara had a sharp drop to 4/- sellers, but Glenshiel were taken at 92/6 and Highlands Trust at 25/-, while Henfield showed business at 41/9. Linggi recovered to 26/6. Pahang Para were changing hands at 6/-. Panawatte at 45/3, and Rubber Trust at 26/4½. Riversdale about 71/6. Strathmore done at 65/7½, and Sungei Ular at 80/-. Sedenak lower at 42/6, but Tebrau hardened to 71/-. In the Borneo group, Rangawan Guaranteed were inquired for at 17/-. Kinarut are changing hands at 21/9, while a few Lamag were done at 1/3. Lok Kawi showed business at 20/9, and the Option Certificates were taken in large parcels between 1/9 and 2/-. Sabas marked 22/3 to 23/3.

OIL SHARES STEADY.

Oil shares possessed a fairly steady undertone. Shells eased ⅛ to 6¼, but Royal Dutch were steady. N Caucasians gained the turn, and Mexican Eagle Pref. and Lobitos each added a few points, the former influenced by the increased dividend.

DIVIDENDS, REPORTS, AND MEETINGS.

CLONTARF AND HILL OF HOWTH TRAMROAD.—The usual 3 per cent., per annum (interim).

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD.—2 per cent. on Pref. stock.

NORTHERN AND DOMINIONS MORTGAGE—Final on Ord. of 6 per cent per annum.

GLOBE TELEGRAPH AND TRUST.—Final of 8/- per share, free of tax, on Ord.

BRITISH AUTOMOBILE TRACTION.—5 per cent. on Ord. for the year.

BUTTERLEY CO.—Dividend of 2½ per cent., and a bonus of 5 per cent., free of tax.

WM. HOLLINS AND CO.—Interim dividend on the Ordinary Shares of 6d. per share, being at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum.

LEICESTER BREWING AND MALTING.—Further dividend of 7 per cent. on Ord., and the second half-year's dividend on Pref.

KYNOCH, LTD.—The report of Kynoch, Ltd., states that once more it has been impossible to have ready at the annual meeting the accounts for the year under review. No appreciable progress has been made towards settling the many outstanding questions which still render it impossible to complete the accounts for the year ended March 3rd, 1916. The huge turnover of the year before has been greatly exceeded during the year, and, though the ratio of profit to turnover has naturally been largely reduced, the directors are satisfied that there is a profit sufficient to justify the distribution which they have recommended—namely, a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum and a bonus of 1/- per share on the Ordinary Shares, free of income tax. This time last year the dividend and bonus were the same, but they were paid less tax.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed April 5) ..... 5 p.c.

Credits were somewhat more plentiful in the Money market owing apparently to increased disbursements on behalf of the Government. The rate for call money only ranged from 4 to 4½ p.c., and the market was able to repay a small sum, which fell due at the Bank of England, conditions at the close of business being distinctly easier. There is again a good demand for weekly fixtures and loans covering the turn of the half-year at 4½ to 4¾ p.c. The appearance of the discount market was steady, and rates were unchanged for five bank bills at 4½ p.c. for all dates. There was a strictly moderate supply of paper on offer. A fair business was reported in Treasury bills in the open market, but quotations were unaltered from Monday, inquiry again being best for October maturities. There was no alteration in the New York exchange ground 4.76¾.

The Silver market turned definitely weaker in the absence of a sustained inquiry, and the quotation for spot bars reacted ½d. to 39½d. per oz.

On Change in the absence of Holland, Denmark, and New York moved in favour of this country. French, Swiss, Italian, Spanish, and Swedish currencies improved in value.

The following foreign exchange rates were current:—Paris—Bankers, 27.26½ to 27.31½; Amsterdam, 11.52 to 11.53; Italy, 54.20 to 54.35; Madrid, 20.10 to 20.25; Petrograd, 202 to 204½.

THE IRISH TIMES.

THE DUBLIN DISTILLERS COMPANY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The letter of "Small Holder," which appeared in your issue of the 20th inst., contained a number of fallacious statements. If the Company's stocks of whiskey were sold in order to obtain the necessary cash wherewith to pay off the shareholders, the difference between the amount so realised and the value at which these stocks stand in the balance sheet would be profit, and, under the provisions of the Finance Acts, nearly the whole of this profit would be subject to a deduction of eighty per cent. in respect of excess profits duty, and the money which "Small Holder" says would go to the shareholders would in reality find its way into the British Exchequer.

Another of "Small Holder's" fallacies is his statement that, when the war closes, distilling will commence again throughout the country, and in a short time the price of whiskey is bound to drop considerably; and that the Government may any day take over the whole stock. This statement would lead the uninformed in such matters to believe that distilling had entirely ceased. As a matter of fact, this never occurred; distilling went on as usual, but the manufacture was restricted to seventy per cent. of the production of each distillery in normal years. It is well known that the Government long since abandoned all idea of using pot-still whiskey for the manufacture of explosives, it being wholly unsuited to that purpose; besides, the available supplies of patent spirit far exceed our requirements.

Every person conversant with the trade knows that the dominating cause of the existing shortage of whiskey is the complete absorption of the profits of all the patent stills in the Kingdom for Government, industrial, and propulsive purposes. This absorption will continue as long as the war lasts, and probably for an indefinite period after its close; but, apart from this, we have the further fact that, even if patent spirit could be produced for potable purposes to-morrow, it could not legally be put into consumption until it had attained the age of three years, and during all that time the existing stocks of pot-still whiskey would also be available to meet the wants of the public, and, as those stocks have already proved to be inadequate to supply the demand, it follows that their market will not be overstocked in the future. Therefore, a realisation of the stocks of the Dublin Distillers Company at the present time would deprive the Company of this enhanced value of their property in whiskey.

As an old member of the Company, familiar with its past history, I have no hesitation in saying that the shareholders should give no countenance to the unknown operators referred to in the letter of "Small Holder." I was a supporter of the committee of shareholders who rescued this Company from destruction three years ago, and the members of that Committee who are now on the Board of the Company have proved themselves to be as able as administrators as they were as rescuers, and they deserve the gratitude and support of every shareholder.—Yours, etc.,

AN OLD SHAREHOLDER."

Co. Dublin, June 26th, 1917.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The letter which you so kindly published on the above subject has given rise to many interesting discussions among the members of our Chamber, and the shareholders generally. Will you please allow me to add a few remarks? It is satisfactory to know that the figure quoted in that letter are tacitly admitted by the directors to be substantially correct, and that the assets of the Company at the present markets price would realise well over one million pounds.

Shareholders are well aware of the accrued dividends due to the Preference Shares, and the question arises: Can the Government legally claim any excess profits until the debt is paid? In assessing the profits of any firm under the new law, all debts are allowed by the Government to be a first claim on the profits of the company, and I am sure the directors are well aware of this, and will dispute any claim which the Government may make on the past year's profits. This question is one of law, and I am not a lawyer; but one thing is certain, that in the case of liquidation one only claim the Government would have against the company would be on the surplus remaining after the capital of the Company and all liabilities, including the accrued dividends, would be paid off. Now, the amount required to pay off the capital is exactly one million pounds, less £80,000 Debenture Shares already cancelled—that is, a sum of £920,000. If we add to this the accrued dividends, say, £240,000—we have a total of £1,160,000, which the assets of the Company are more than able to meet. I am sure that every shareholder, like myself, would prefer to get the full value of his shares now than trust to the uncertain fortunes of the hidden future. Under liquidation now we are certain of, at least, our capital. Without liquidation, we cannot be sure of anything.

The suggestion has been made that those who are largely interested shall call a meeting to bring about the immediate liquidation of the Company for the benefit of the shareholders, and I am sure that if this is done, they will be supported by the vast majority of the shareholders.—Yours, etc.,

"SMALL HOLDER."

QUEEN'S COUNTY.
I HAVE received instructions from Arthur Neville Prussia, to SELL BY AUCTION, at the Mart, on Tuesday, 24th JULY (if not previously disposed of), the Residence, Farm, and Demesne of DOCKAGH, containing 172a. 2r. 5p. Statute Measure, held in Fee Farm Grant, subject to an annuity of £20 11s. 8d., payable to Irish Land Commission. There are on the Property a Dwelling-house with 8 rooms, and Dwelling-house on the Farm, with Offices, all in good repair, and the land is prettily situated, with nice plantations round it, and suitable for grazing or tillage. The hills on this Property are the source of the best grouse shooting in the country. The grass parts of the Demesne have been newly fenced in, and are capable of carrying a large number of sheep and cattle, or could be let as a dairy Farm. Electricity adjoins the lands. Dockagh is about 4 miles from Mountrath Station, G.S. and W. Railway.
For conditions of Sale apply to
JOHN WALDRON, Esq., Solicitor, Thomastown, Co. Kilkenny; or
